To the Descendants of Benjamin Coe<sup>4</sup> (born 1753), of Little Compton, R.I.:

Since printing the "Genealogy of Matthew Coe" information has been received by me concerning the Revolutionary services of Benjamin Coe,<sup>4</sup> of Little Compton, which seems of sufficient importance to warrant the present circular, which can easily be affixed to the Genealogy for preservation and for use, in case any of his descendants desire at any future time to become connected with the Societies of the Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution.

In explanation of the failure to mention these services when the Genealogy was printed, I will say that Benjamin Coe died seventy-seven years ago, and an inquiry of those who might know failed to elicit any information on this point. Moreover, the public records which were consulted proved very incomplete, and it was only accidentally that the facts came out as shown by the record found by Mr. Tilley.

After noting the letter from Mrs. Wood and the affidavit of Mr. Tilley, the full significance of the word "Captain" found upon the tombstone appears. It ought to be a source of honest pride to his descendants to perpetuate the memory of one who bore his full share in the dangers and sacrifices which made us a nation.

The following "Record" can be made use of, if desired, in application for membership in the Societies of the Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution. It has been accepted by the Massachusetts society as amply sufficient.

RECORD.

At a meeting of the General Assembly of Rhode Island held at South Kingston on the second Monday in June, 1779, Benjamin Coe, of Little Compton, was appointed ensign of the first company of that town. [Little Compton.]

At a meeting of the General Assembly of Rhode Island held at Providence on the fourth Monday in May, 1781, Benjamin Coe, of Little Compton, was elected Captain of the first company of infantry of that town [Little Compton], being a part of the first battalion of militia in the State of Rhode Island.

I certify that the above is a true copy from the Colonial Records of Rhode Island.

(Signed)

R. HAMMETT TILLEY,

Librarian Newport Historical Society.

NEWPORT, Oct. 4, 1894.

Mr. Tilley states that the Adjutant-General's office of Rhode Island does not contain a complete record of the specific services of the Rhode Island military organizations; the record being very incomplete, for the reason that the island of Rhode Island and regions adjacent were occupied by the British for quite a period.

Mrs. Diana Coe Gray Wood, now of Somerset, Mass., a granddaughter of Benjamin Coe aforesaid, now in her eightieth year, writes Henry F. Coe, of Boston, as follows, under date of Sept. 4, 1894 :

I want to speak of the military record of your great-grandfather and my grandfather, Capt. Benjamin Coe. He was a soldier of the Revolution, served all through the war, was stationed for a time at Newport, and by his courage and untiring devotion to the interests of his country won his title and was ever after called Captain Coe.

Your grandfather, Ezra Coe, and others, were establishing grandmother's claim to a pension when she died. (1834.)

Mrs. Wood was nineteen years of age when the widow of Benjamin Coe died, and then resided in Little Compton.

I HAVE, for several years, as I could spare the time in the intervals of business, and for my own information, been collecting data relating to that branch of the Coe family to which I belong, descending from Matthew Coe, the emigrant of 1645.

The record appears to be a quite perfect one for the first two or three generations, and with trifling exceptions almost perfect for the last three or four generations. Occasionally dates may be slightly inaccurate, caused by different dates being given by members of the same family, but the record, as a whole, is reasonably correct. As the members of the family are now so widely scattered and so distant, most of them, from the early home of their fathers in Little Compton, it has seemed to me that I would be doing them a service in printing for their use and for private distribution the results of my inquiry and correspondence. It will serve as a foundation for future building, and possibly preserve what has been obtained from those who, in the course of nature, must soon pass away.

The plan of the record, it will be seen, is to bring the names down to the fourth generation in regular order. Then to take up the names of the four brothers from whom the different families descend, namely, Samuel, William, John, and Benjamin, and trace the descendants of each by themselves to the present time. In this way will the four groups be shown.

The record shows that no one of the fifth generation was more distantly related than cousins, while the sixth, seventh, and eighth generations might become second, third, or fourth cousins, except in the case of members of the same group.

I desire to express my gratification at the willingness shown to aid me in my researches, and my sincere thanks to those who, at considerable personal inconvenience, have helped me in this work. I have stated facts, so far as known, of the origin and early history of the family, thinking it would be pleasant for these of to-day to know something about those from whom they are descended.

THE COE FAMILY.

MATTHEW COE first appears in this country in 1645, at Portsmouth, N.H., and according to Savage's genealogy removed to Gloucester, Mass., and married Elizabeth Wakley, daughter of Thomas Wakley, June 15, 1647. He is known to have resided in Casco, Me., and also in Salem, Mass., but removed to Falmouth, Mass., in 1661, where he died, just before the outbreak of King Philip's war, about 1676.

Family tradition in Little Compton was, that Matthew Coe came from Suffolk, England, and this is undoubtedly the truth. Suffolk appears to have been the home of this family from the present time as far back as there are any records. The writer is indebted to Mr. George Coe, of Long Melford, Suffolk, for two photographs with the following written upon them by him :

"High Street Farm, Long Melford, Suffolk, Residence of Mr. George Coe, and also the house of his ancestors for 'many generations.'" Also :

"Wash Farm, part in Long Melford, the other in Alpheton. Residence of Mr. H. Cooper, brother-in-law to Mr. George Coe, from whence Mr. Robert Coe started for New England in 1634."

Fox's "Book of Martyrs" gives an account of the trial and martyrdom of Roger Coe, concluding as follows :

"This Roger Coe, an aged father, after his troubles and conflicts with his adversaries, at length was committed to the fire, at Yoxford, in the county of Suffolk, where he most blessedly ended his aged years, A.D. 1555."

Roger Coe is an "aged father" in 1555, but the bishop who presided at his trial referred to his father as having been an "honest man," so that it is certain that Suffolk was the home of this family before America was discovered. The records of births and deaths in Suffolk contain names of the family as far back as they extend.

It is well known that the English seat of the Winthrop family was at Groton, Suffolk. In "Governor Winthrop's Life and Letters," by his descendant, Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, appears a diary written by Gov. Winthrop's father, Adam Winthrop, from 1590 on for several years. In it he speaks two or three times of "Mr. John Coe," with whom he had a lawsuit about a meadow. Also of the death of Thomas Coe, his own godson, and makes several other references to those of that name.

From the name and location the family is probably of Saxon origin. It is certain that Robert Coe, who came to this country in 1634, came from Suffolk. There is a record of his birth, and the place where he resided is known, but there is no such record of Matthew, and yet family tradition gives Suffolk as his English home. And more convincing than that, even, the family peculiarities of both the descendants of Robert and Matthew are to a remarkable degree the same, and the early family names in this country and England are the same.

A few years ago the writer saw a young man in a Western city, a descendant of Robert Coe in the eighth generation, whose photograph would have passed for the photograph of a nephew of his, of the same age, who is a descendant of Matthew in the eighth generation. Possibly a thorough search of the English records may sometime settle definitely the place and date of birth of Matthew.

Matthew had several children, of whom the oldest appears to have been John, born 1649, from whom we descend. Another son, Isaac, married Martha Ramsey, of Roxbury, Mass., in 1706, and there appears no further record of him. There are families of the name in Virginia and West Virginia who cannot be traced back to either Robert or Matthew. Possibly they sprang from Isaac, but this would be pure conjecture.

John Coe, according to family tradition, and sustained by Plymouth Colony Records, was a surveyor and settler of boundaries. As such, he came down the Seaconnet river to Little Compton, R.I., about the time of the settlement of that town, and went to the house of William Pabodie, where he remained "until his work was done." Pabodie had married Elizabeth Alden, the oldest daughter of John Alden and Priscilla Mullins, of "Mayflower" fame, the heroine of Longfellow's famous poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish." Elizabeth was supposed to be the first white female child born in New England.

In this connection it may be of interest to state that her memory has been perpetuated and her grave marked by the erection of a granite shaft of fine design and goodly proportions. This was accomplished through the active interest of the late Mrs. Sarah S. Wilbour, of Little Compton, materially aided by members of our family. It was found that the original headstone was being gradually destroyed by the lapse of time and the depredations of those desirous to possess a "chip" from it. The stone has therefore been sunk in the west face of the monument and protected. It bears the following inscription:

Here lyeth the body of Elizabeth, the wife of William Pabodie, who died May ye 31st. 1717, in the 94th year of her age.

On north face is inscribed :

Elizabeth Pabodie, daughter of the Plymouth Pilgrims, John Alden and Priscilla Mullins. The first white woman born in New England.

On east face :

New monument erected June, 1882.

On south face, the appropriate lines written by Mr. George S. Burleigh :

" A bud from Plymouth's Mayflower sprung,
Transplanted here to live and bloom.
Her memory, ever sweet and young,
The centuries guard within this tomb."

John Coe married her daughter, Sarah Pabodie, and bought a large tract of land in Little Compton, which remained in possession of his descendants until 1852. He appears to have been a man trusted and honored by his townsmen, having been repeatedly chosen as selectman, and to other positions of trust. The record shows that he had a family of nine children, of whom three only were sons; viz., Joseph, who died unmarried, John, through whom the family descends, and Samuel.

Of Samuel we know he was married in 1716 to Mary Chadwick, by Col. Benjamin Church, and that four sons and three daughters were born to them. Isaac, the oldest son, died in Newport unmarried. John died before he was a year old. Matthew probably died early, as no mention of him is made in his father's will. Samuel married Elizabeth Peckham, but there is no record of any children.

The descent therefore is from Matthew, through John, and John, his son. This son, John Coe, appears to have been engaged in the colonial service, against the French and Indians, on the eastern frontier in Maine. In this connection the following letter is copied from the Massachusetts Records by the Massachusetts Genealogical Register, showing considerable eccentricity in spelling, and also the kind of influences sometimes exercised over our red brethren. It is to be hoped our ancestor confined himself to the "argument," and left the "Drink soficient" to be supplied by others.

In pursuent to an order Rec<sup>d</sup> from Your Hon<sup>r</sup> bearing Date the 18th Currant, to Enlist thirty able bodied Indians for his maj. sarvis In the Estern fronteres: on Satterday morning I sett out from boston & since have notifi'd all the Indians in Little compton & the south part of Tiverton to meet me this Day, by twelve of the Clock, att the place appointed, which thay Did, Tho not all, for some Ill minded person had told them that there was to be a press. John probably had his hands too full to think of taking a wife while engaged in such a hazardous service, for he did not marry until 1740, when forty-one years of age. He had a family of eight children, four sons living to grow up and have families of their own.

Soon after the close of the Revolutionary war, his son Samuel removed to Hamilton, N.Y. ; William, to Pomfret, Conn. ; John, to Smithfield, R.I. ; while Benjamin remained in Little Compton, upon the old homestead. The descendants of each are numerous and found in the record.

Rhode Island was one of the last States to accept and ratify the Federal Constitution, it being a contested question. The vote of Little Compton, in 1788, was 63 yes, 57 no. Voting with the majority, we find the names of Samuel Coe (afterwards of Hamilton, N.Y.) and his brother, Benjamin Coe. It is pleasant to think they were on the right side at that time, and it is to be hoped that the Coes are on the right side in politics at the present day.

From the foregoing it will be seen that Little Compton is the cradle of the family on this side of the Atlantic. Six generations of the family are at rest in the old burial-ground, and yet many of the name have never seen, and may never see, the old town. To such I will say it is beautifully situated, bordering on the Atlantic ocean and Narragansett Bay. The land is very fertile, but there is less farming done than formerly, more attention being given to poultry-raising, which is found to be much more profitable.

The town was settled mostly by Pilgrim stock from Plymouth and Duxbury, and, in fact, it was a part of Plymouth Colony until 1747. In 1790 the town numbered nearly one-third more inhabitants than now, there having been a large emigration to the "new lands" of New York State late in the last century.

Of late years, wealthy people are beginning to appreciate the great beauty of its shores, and several expensive "cottages" have been erected. It is in full sight of Newport, and separated only by an arm of Narragansett bay, a few miles wide.

A goodly number of men have been born here who have made their mark in the world, in various callings. Little Compton will always be known as the place where Ray Palmer was born, and where his boyhood was spent. The author of some of the finest hymns in the English language, no doubt, here drank in the inspiration which produced them.

Another fact should be stated. This family goes right back to the "Mayflower," through the marriage of John Coe with Sarah Pabodie. Her sister, Mercy Pabodie, married William Simmons, whose granddaughter, Sarah Simmons, married Benjamin Coe; so that we (a part of us at least) have a double hold on Pilgrim ancestry. If any one should think I have said too much, please remember it is family talk, and "all in the family."

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM<sup>4</sup> COE, OF LITTLE COMPTON, R.I., AND POMFRET, CONN.

6. WILLIAM<sup>4</sup> COE (John,<sup>3</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Matthew<sup>1</sup>), married 1771, Sarah Ellis, of Little Compton, daughter of Rev. Jonathan and Patience Ellis. She was born January 8, 1752, and died June 25, 1816. Her father was the honored pastor of the church at Little Compton for thirty-six years, from his ordination in 1749 to his death, September 7, 1785. He was born 1717, and was graduated at Harvard College in 1737.

Perhaps inherited tendencies can be seen from the fact that several of the descendants of Sarah Ellis Coe have chosen the ministry as their calling.

Children :

20. ISAAC,<sup>5</sup> born Little Compton, December 15, 1772; died Ashford, Conn., May 24, 1853.
PAMELIA, born Little Compton, June 5, 1778; died Woodstock, May, 1854.
